

NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS

Ana-Maria Teodora Andronic is currently a PhD student at the Faculty of Psychology of the Al. I. Cuza University of Iasi. She has a Bachelor's degree in Psychology and Sciences of Education and a Master's degree in European Law. Ana has been working for a London-based charitable organization since 2017, supporting refugees and migrants to build a meaningful life in the UK. Contact: ana.andronic@student.uaic.ro.

Alina-Carmen Brihan is a PhD Lecturer in the Department of Political Science and Communication Sciences, Faculty of History, International Relation, Political Science and Communication Sciences, University of Oradea. Graduated in Political Science and Law (BA degrees at Babeş – Bolyai University and University of Oradea), with post-graduate specializations in International Relations and European Studies (MA degrees at Babeş – Bolyai University and University of Reims Champagne-Ardenne, France), and with a PhD and a post-doctoral degree in History (at University of Oradea), she teaches courses and seminars on EU Institutions and Policies, EU Governance, History of European Integration, etc. She was the coordinator of a Jean Monnet Module, funded by the European Commission. Author of several scientific articles, reviews and books, she channeled her academic and scientific research interests towards areas such as: active European citizenship, education, EU decision-making process and European governance. Contact: alina_brihan@yahoo.com.

Réka Friedery, PhD, LL.M., is research fellow at the Department of European Union Law and International Law, Institute for Legal Sciences, Centre for Social Sciences, Hungarian Academy of Sciences Centre for Excellence. Her fields of excellence include European law. She gained experience in studying the governance, processes and consequences of mobility (free movement, migration), accountability, citizens' participation in the EU, AI in migration policies and free movement in crises. She is the co-editor of the Quarterly on Refugee Problems – AWR Bulletin (QRP), the journal of the Technical University Würzburg-Schweinfurt and the Association for the Study of the World Refugee Problem (AWR). Contact: friedery.reka@tk.hu.

Mondli Hlatshwayo is an Associate Professor at the University of Johannesburg's Centre for Education Rights and Transformation. His research concentrates on the trade union responses to technological innovations and the so-called Fourth Industrial Revolution, platform work, immigrant and migrant workers, public transport, higher education, worker education, precarious forms of work, social movements, and non-governmental organisations. Hlatshwayo is the 2018 winner of the Review of African Political Economy (ROAPE) Journal Ruth First Prize. He is co-editor (with Aziz Choudry) of the Pluto Press book, Just Work? Migrant Workers, Globalization, and Resistance (2016). Contact: mshlatshwayo@uj.ac.za.

Jared Keyel, PhD, is an Assistant Professor of Sociology at Rowan University in New Jersey, USA. His research explores the displacement caused by American wars, and opportunities for resettled refugees to engage in social and political struggles in societies of refuge. As a scholar-practitioner, Dr. Keyel has 15 years of experience working with nonprofit organizations that serve immigrant, refugee, and other marginalized communities in the United States. Contact: jkeyel@gmail.com.

Mike Omilusi is the Executive Director, Initiative for Transformative Policy and Inclusive Development (INTRAPID, Africa) and an Associate Professor at the Faculty of Social Sciences, Ekiti State University, Nigeria, where he has been teaching since 2009. He has worked with several national and international organizations for nearly 25 years at the field and policy levels on varied thematic areas such as electoral conflict and violence prevention, migration across multiple international borders, and open governance. He is a volunteer-researcher with the African Media Association, Malta (AMAM) and Solidarity Overseas Service, Malta (SOS Malta). His research interests span electoral studies, migration, conflict and gender issues in Sub-Saharan Africa. Contact: watermike2003@yahoo.co.uk.

Sehlahphi Sibanda's Doctoral Studies were completed in 2023 under the auspices of the University of Johannesburg's Research Chair in Community, Adult and Worker Education (CAWE). She is a researcher and social justice activist focusing on forced migration, labour migration, precarious work, and precarious resistance. Sibanda has vast experience in social justice project management. Contact: sibandasehlahphi@gmail.com.

Amanuel Isak Tewelde, PhD, is Senior Postdoctoral Research Fellow at the Department of Sociology Hawassa University, Ethiopia. Contact: amanisak@gmail.com.

Elijah Yendaw, PhD, is an Associate Professor in the Department of Governance and Development Management, and Vice Dean of the Faculty of Public Policy and Governance (in charge of academics) at the Simon Diedong Dombo University of Business and Integrated Development Studies (SDD-UBIDS), Ghana. He holds a Ph.D. in Population and Health from the University of Cape Coast. Prof. Yendaw has robust grounding expertise in population and migration studies. He has a firm disciplinary grounding in both social science and interdisciplinary research using qualitative, quantitative, and mixed methods. Contact: eyendaw@ubids.edu.gh.